

Acupet Newsletter: November 2019

Welcome to the new look newsletter. I hope you like it; I love it! I almost wish I could take full responsibility for it, but it is actually thanks to the work of the lovely Miesha, my right-hand girl, fellow goat wrangler and go-to person for all things remotely techy! Yes, she does work freelance (only for tech stuff, goat wrangling is more of a hobby than a vocation!)

Before this year's Dog Lover's Show is but a distant memory, I want to say a HUGE thank you to Hamish, Mandy May and Annabelle for going above and beyond in the helpfulness stakes. These three very attractive and highly intelligent Border Collies brought their humans along so they could act as models for me to demonstrate acupuncture (on the dogs, not the humans). They stayed for both full days and between them, we managed six demonstrations in all.

You are all fantastic! Thank you!!

Spring Has Sprung!...

And yet, the nights are still a bit chilly but not quite cold enough for our fur babies to need electric heating pads. However, I do have a small number of self-heating beds and pads leftover from winter, and as an exclusive for newsletter subscribers, I am offering a 15% discount off the purchase price. Check them out below and use the coupon code SPRING to get your discount but hurry, there is very limited stock, and once they are gone, that may well be it for a while... If you are one of my regular house call clients, talk to me directly and also save on postage!!

Self Heating Beds

Self-heating beds work in the same way as space blankets. They reflect your pet's own body heat back at them. This helps to keep your furry loved ones toasty warm on those chilly nights. Because of the way they work, there is no danger of your pet being overheated like they can be with some electric heating pads.

We have plain flat mats for dogs from small to extra-large. As well as a couple of small beds for cats or little dogs. We also have a small, super plush, bed that is so soft and snuggly I know at least one person who wishes they came in human size!!

These beds are not suitable for very weak or very young critters who cannot create their own body heat, but for everybody else they're the perfect bed to take the chill out of the last of the cold weather!

Get them while they're warm!!
